The Capital, Great Salt Lake City, (Population, 17,000,) situate on the overland highway westward, is the grand centre of the golden circle comprising Colorado, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico and Arizona. The City is one of the most beautiful in the Union, and the largest between St. Louis and Sacramento. MINING LAND MONOPOLY IN COLORADO.—In 1860, Congress passed an act to confirm certain private land claims in the Mexican grants, which gave to Charles Baubiere 1,125,000 acres of land, located, we think, in the present Territory of Colorado. Gov. Gilpin, of the latter Territory, appears to have the disposal of this immense property, which is known as the Sangre di Christo Grant. Some time ago, the governor agreed to convey this land to some New York capitalists, under the name of the San Luis Land and Mining Company, on the following conditions: That company to have a cash capital of $1,000,000, to issue stock to the amount of $6,000,000 and to give the Governor $100,000 in cash and $1,000,000 in stock. But the Governor has since disregarded this agreement, and commenced organizing a new company; whereupon J. R. Barrett, in behalf of the San Luis Company, has asked for an injunction in the New York City Supreme Court, to restrain Governor Gilpin from selling the land, which is valued at $10,000,000, to other parties. Gilpin contends that the agreement with the friends of Baubiere was only a mere audacious ruse for a few days, and that the San Luis Company was never organized. The case was postponed to give Gilpin an opportunity to appear.

We are informed by Mr. Lunthan Kountze, who arrived from the east by the last overland coach, that one hundred and fifty-eight mules were taken by Indians at Alkali Station last Saturday night. Two Mexicans were herding the mules, which belonged to Ward & Co., Sutlers at Fort Laramie. These herders state that the party who captured the mules, consisted of ten Indians.

His Excellency, Governor Lyon, to the gentlemen of the Council and House of Representatives of the Territory of Idaho, Boise City, 8th inst. It is a document full of wholesome suggestions upon matters of legislation, on subjects connected with the great interests, mineral and miscellaneous, of that rich young Territory. Everything of partizanship is ignored, nothing is exaggerated, and the necessities of the Territory are discussed with effectiveness and oratory for which his energetic Excellency is characterized of old. In the practical suggestions for future efforts, as well as the public interest it must create abroad, the instrument as a whole is creditable to the genius of that growing Territory and its Governor. After opening with a survey of the situation of the country generally, it treats on the subjects of Common Schools, Auditor's and Treasurer's Report, the Military, Territorial Agriculture, Franchises, Snake River Navigation, Mint and Assay Office, Lewiston Wagon Road to Helena, The Milan Road, Mails, Railroad from Salt Lake to the Columbia, Territorial Buildings, Inducements for Immigration to Idaho, Routes to Nevada and California, and a glowing peroration on the mineral wealth of Idaho, which, he says, is adequate for the industry of ages—to develope and exhaust.

Indian Treacheries and Indian Treaties.

The Atchison Free Press contains complete particulars of that Indian raid and massacre on the Butterfield or Smoky Hill route, some time last month, Nov. 19th, of which coach attack our dispatches spoke in brief a few days after. Bands of Sioux, Cheyennes and Arapahoes, many of whom spoke English intelligibly, under the leadership of Bob Bent, (half breed son of Col. Bent, of Bent's Fort, Arkansas River, Colorado,) attacked the coach, killed and scalped seven men, burned the stations each way from the scene of the attack, burned all the coaches, wagons, &c., within their reach, and finally ran off—with all the stock in that whole section of country. To show the treachery of these tribes—with whom the Peace Commissioners had completed treaties only a few days previously—some of those very Indians had been treated kindly, fed and cared for, at both of these adjoining stations [illegible] the day that reinforcements arrived to the party that had made such professions of friendship to the station keepers, and expressed such unanimous desire to "live at peace" for time to come, that the station men compassionately shook hands with them, at their solicitation, before starting off—only to return the same meridian to commit massacre and arson. But to sum up this whole thing the more, that all may understand, that will, whether in the west or east, we clip from statements published by the pen of one fugitive passenger, D. C. Collier, Esq., editor of the Colorado Register:

The Indians insisted on shaking hands with every one present, and kept crowding around till they discovered the strength of the party. They then requested Mr. Herwin to give them a written statement to the effect that they had been there, had treated the party with civility, and had departed in peace, which he did.

They then informed the messenger that he might get up his stock and go without molestation, and volunteered to drive up the stock for them. While harnessing the stock the attack was commenced by the Indians by shooting arrows and pistols. No offence had been given by the white men.

The Indians in revenge cut the tongue of Ambrose from his mouth while he was yet alive, and proceeded to torture him by burning holes into his bowells, holding him over a fire by his hands and feet. A few miles west of this they came upon two carpenters and a stage driver, who were travelling with a wagon and a span of horses. They burned the wagon and killed and mutilated the men, stripping and scalping them as before. Still further west, they attacked two soldiers, stripped and scalped them, and left both for dead.

They [illegible] burning all the stations which had been erected, except one, for one hundred and fifty miles, and driving off the stock.

Fresh lodge pole trails were to be seen in several places along the route. The impression is that the Indians were working westward toward Colorado.

Speaking on this subject, the Atchison Champion, heretofore a strong stickler for Indian humanity and the policy of Peace Treaties, thus talks out like a western man ought to do:

On the Arkansas the tribes entered into a solemn agreement, by which they were to abandon the war path, and return to the [illegible] evidently seeking sun to abandon from defending the military road. The Arapahoes, Cheyennes, and other tribes, consented to these treaty stipulations. Their annuities were ordered forward, their old [illegible] left Walla Walla ago.

We fall to [illegible] the docility and good faith which many see in savage character. And we protest against a policy, such as recently demonstrated by the [illegible] bring the knee and suing for peace from this savage foe, especially until a sufficient force has been [illegible] to convince the red man that we have the power as [illegible] to punish our enemies, as [illegible] their friendship.

This is but another instance of the pressing demand for troops on the Plains, and the neglect of the Government to provide, by a suitable force, against the depredations of hostile bands of Indians. The vast commerce of the Plains has already been seriously crippled, and, if something is not quickly done will be almost totally destroyed, by these repeated depredations. Ten thousand cavalry should be along the three great Overland Routes to day, but instead of this we have but a scattered, insignificant force of soldiers. Hundreds of valuable lives have been sacrificed and millions of dollars worth of property destroyed for want of force adequate to protect the interests of the greatest commerce of the country. The Government is doing great injustice to the Western States and Territories if it fails any longer to neglect sending a force adequate to conquer the hostile Indians who infest the Plains, and force them to be peaceable.

It is reported the police are also on the look-out for him. The steamer City of Boston brought out a delegation of Fenians to the Circles at Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis.

Washington, Dec. 17.

Gov. Corwin was gradually sinking all day. The physician in attendance thinks he will not live through the night. Many prominent friends called to-day and inquired as to his condition. He has been unconscious ever since he was stricken by paralysis, on Friday night.

New York, Dec. 18

The specials contain little interest this morning.

A steamer, from Liverpool the 5th, has the following:

Breadstuffs firmer; wheat advancing slightly.

O'Leary, the Fenian, has been found guilty. He made a speech, denying that he was a traitor, and declaring that he owed no allegiance to the Queen, no obedience to British laws. He was sentenced to twenty years penal servitude.

The indications have increased that Earl Russell intends to introduce the reform bill.

GETTING WORSE.—No, pray don't cut Utah in two, that would make two polygamic territories, instead of one.—Salt Lake Telegraph.

Expunge her, then. She'll never be a civilized State until —Sacramento Bee.

Yes, expunge her' and then have Utah everywhere. Kick the Mustard seed all over the earth, and give it a thousand roots instead of one.—Mormon Telegraph.

No; but he'd then have Utah here right where she belongs—in the sisterhood of loyal, decent Territories! Comparing that polluting system with the metaphor of the mustard seed! Pshaw! Say, rather, to the virus of some poxine plague. Cauterize the cursed thing, and save the country from the thousand scabs that otherwise will fester into putrefying sores!

A. D. Richardson, correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune, comes down pretty heavy on our Mormon neighbors. The puritan wants a war with Utah—Montana Democrat.

Our "Mormon neighbors" ought to make a handsome club of subscribers for Major Bruce,—such milk and water stuff being just what could [illegible] must feel complimented while each men of straw covertly and cowardly strive to carry water on both shoulders, and sympathetically show countenance to the "twin relic of barbarism." Montana men must have a miserable opinion of any [illegible] who has no more backbone in it than the Democrat displays in "that [illegible]."

The best tri[illegible] plucky [illegible] Gen C[illegible] Lake a[illegible] iden of [illegible] opening [illegible] and thus breaking down the ism or driving out the Mormons. For this purpose he employed his troops, when not needed for military duty, in prospecting for mines. They met with great success and it is now considered settled that Utah is not behind either of the organized Territories in mineral resources. Gen. Connor, in pursuance of his plan established the Union Vedette, at a cost bordering on $20,000, and all who have regularly seen it will agree that it has fulfilled its design with ability and courage. The mines and the newspapers will eventually give triumph to Gen. Connor, both as an enterprising man and as a statesman and soldier. He reminds one forcibly of the chivalric adventurers, who sought the new world in the beginning of the sixteenth century, although his aims are as much [illegible] as theirs were the spirit of the age. Of course, when Connor shall have succeeded in eliminating the plague-spot of Mormonism from the face of our country, there will be enough to belittle the deed or to dispute with him the honor. We needn't recount the story of Columbus and the egg to illustrate our meaning. Gen. Connor's plan was simple and obvious, and persevered in, will be successful. Those who know him can judge as to whether or no he will persevere to the end. But here is the tribute we started to give. It is from "A Mormon of the old School" and runs thus:

"Permit me to say that I hailed with a joy that none can feel save those who had tasted the bitterness of Utah slavery—the issue of your Vedette star—hailed it as a beam of light designed by the great Elohiem as the guiding star of Utah's destiny from a state of degenerate inactivity to one of elevated and enlightened prosperity, and the history of the great good it has wrought in Utah, more than fully bears out the idea I had formed of it."

The same writer discloses as follows the secret good the Vedette is doing by informing, and consequently disintegrating the Mormons themselves:

"In my intercourse with the people of G. S. L. City, I find many who read your paper, that do not contribute to it—they borrow it of others, and would subscribe for it themselves, but they dare not. The fear that somebody might discover that they subscribed to it, and they be reported to their spiritual directors, deters them from subscribing. They fear to be branded as disaffected, and the odium of an apostate's name is terrible to them as the jaws of death. None, Sir, can know the fearful significance of that reproach, save those who have been or are under its ban. Every species of chicanery is resorted to to ruin such, and if through a peaceable disposition, they carefully avoid fracases of every kind, the 'faithful' seek to bring them into such, with the hope to induce retaliation, and justify a bastard, perhaps, a deadly attack upon them. I have seen this tried even recently, and before the brave California troops came here, tried with effect."

Colorado has a deeper interest in Utah ily. At present she is a cypher as regards the great interest centering to the West. Relieved from the incubus of Polygamy, she would at once take the position which of right belongs to her. Our people might find in these considerations good cause to assist the Vedette in its unequal struggle.

[From the Gold Hill, Nevada, News.]

Polygamy.

This putrid sore on our bright land is fast being eaten out by the light of advancing civilization. The world has long wondered why it was permitted by our Government to retain an unmolested existence, and patriots have grieved that the "powers that be" did not cut it out by one blow of the strong military arm. It is at last being cleansed; and what was once, and still is, to some extent, the foster-mother of corruption, is fast giving way to purity, morality and nature's demands. Isolated as the Mormons have been from the outward world, and composed of the most ignorant and bigoted of humanity, it has been an easy task for their shrewd, unprincipled leaders to keep them united by the cry of persecution. But, aside from the refusal of the Government to admit the State of Deseret into the Union, with her whoredom of polygamy, they have found very little basis for complaint. Utah is fast being settled by pioneers, who go to develop the resources of the country, and not to gratify their animal passions. And she is, by this means, being purified. This infusion of the "Gentile" element among the Mormons sheds light on many a misguided mind, and Brigham sees his power rapidly dwindling away. It is useless for him now to cry "persecution!" The duped see their folly, and are one by one renouncing their immoral doctrine—being protected in their right by Uncle Sam's bayonets.

A REMARKABLE MAN.—A Harrisburg paper tells of a man who has failed in business four times; been upset in a stage coach, and thrown down an embankment of sixty feet; fallen headforemost through a hatchway in a store in Reading; has been married three times, and is the father of twenty-one children. "He still lives," and is in business at Harrisburg.

Just the man to make a Brigham Young mormon of. Send him along; the Editor of the Dead Sea Telegraph will procure him three more wives, and who knows but Brigham may put him on the shoulder and send him to Congress.

BOWLES, of the Springfield, Mass., Republican, in his letter from the far west, speaks of Senator Stewart, of Nevada, in this complimentary strain:

Perhaps the most influential, intellectual mind among the Pacific congressmen is that of Senator Stewart of Nevada. He blends qualities of the first order, comprehending the affairs of his section, and stating them with vigorous effect.

PIETY, pocket and politics are frequently in for war with Utah.—Mormon Contemporary.

Not so; but polygamy, to indorse and the dupes, are eternally preaching war against the sovereignty of the United

Where weary souls shall never grieve
If one can say, "I do believe."

And then how bright the perfect morn!

Take courage [illegible] and bear
